BEAUTY IN BUSINESS.

Good Look An Asset.

"Good looks, after all, are a girl's best asset, even to-day. In business and private life they help her to success," said a young London girl recently, after she had been awarded £300 for a facial disfigurement caused by a motor accident.

In these days, when most girls are good to look at, if they are not good-looking, it is difficult to say how far their look have made or will make for success in business. Looks are certainly an asset, and, other things being equal, they help to tip the scale in a girl's favour, especially where advancement rests on some man's preference.

I know an office where a vacancy arose for a superintendent of typists. Of the two girls on the staff who were in the running for the job, one was pretty and the other plain. Now the plain girl was more "brainy" than her rival, and on merits the other girls expected her to succeed. But the choice lay with a man; and the pretty girl secured the appointment.

In certain kinds of business, beauty is almost essential to success. The proprietress of a beauty parlour, for instance, should be a shining example of the efficacy of her own treatment, and an assistant in a fashionable florist should vie in bloom with the flowers she sells. But women in all walks of business life whose duties bring them into frequent contact with client or customer find that beauty is a lure that few can withstand, especially when it is allied with that grace and good manners.

It is because all these qualities are seldom found in combination in the individual that there are not more women at the helm of our great industrial undertakings. Men resent the merely "clever" woman, and they harbour no love for the woman with "push." They may be attracted by a pretty woman; but to one possessed of brains, beauty, and charm they will show deference and respect.

But it is continued effort that brings success. Although a pretty girl may hold away now and again on the strength of her looks, lasting success comes only to those who can build a career for themselves with fade and afford little support in middle age; character built on a stronger and surer foundation will then come proudly into its own.

OF WOMEN

IT'S A SPORTING IDEA

Martha Sleeper

Hollywood.—Sports things are always the most interesting and diversified of Hollywood clothes.

Martha Sleeper is wearing a smart black and white checked waistcoat jacket, with short sleeves, double-breasted and finished with a trim white cording. There's a topcoat, tailored as the waistcoat and slightly mannish in line, and the costume is completed by a black, wrap-around, straightline skirt.

I saw Jean Harlow playing golf with Clarke Gable and Jean was wearing a blue and white striped silk dress with a full pleated skirt and sleeveless blouse.

Dona Roberts and Dick Powell were at the beach recently. Donna wore gray slacks, red and gray beach sandals and a red turtle-neck sweater which was backless.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, lunching with Maurice Chevalier in the Paramount cafe, wore a brown English tweed suit with a yellow turtle-neck sweater. Her brown fedora hat had just a touch of mannishness.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

By Alicia Hart

HAVE you a size 16 complex? Do you still wriggle into things that are really too small and not realize why you are not entirely comfortable, just because that size used to fit you?

Even women who keep themselves nice and slim usually find that they take things made slightly differently, as the years go on.

I have known women who wore sleeves so tight that their arms looked as if they were about to burst through. I know one woman who came in one day with a beaming face.

"Do you know," she regaled the group, "I've been so uncomfortable, for a long time now, without realizing what was the matter. Now I've bought both my giraffe any my brassiere one size larger and you'd be surprised how relieved I feel!"

Shoes are perhaps the biggest single item to consider. Are yours long enough? The width makes little difference, just so your toes don't get pinched. But shortness in length throws all those delicate bones of your feet out of place. Short stockings are almost as bad as short shoes.

Armholes are another thing to watch. Do you need just a little more room around the armholes? Well, get it in your next dress. Your circulation needs it, even if your vanity doesn't. And right there across your shoulders you may be feeling strained. Well, a half inch wider in the back and a half inch wider in the front won't make you look any bigger but will relax you and make you comfortable.

Foundation garments should be fitted carefully. Certainly sane, modern women know there's no use lacing. Yet many women do get these stretch-both-ways garments too small. The result is that they "ride up" and you bulge over them. Neither is pleasant nor pleasing.

Women over 35 are the ones to watch these things. And they might pass it on to their husbands too. For men err more than women in continuing to get collars, shirts, underthings and hose too small, after their dimensions develop a larger size.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY—

MONA MORAN, who supports her mother, invalid father, little sister KITTY, and nee-do-well brother, DUD, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires.

CHAPTER IV.

After leaving Mona at the office Steve headed his car northward with no plan except to go home until time to call for her at five.

His hand lay on the wheel mechanically, the car responding to his slightest touch with a sensitive race horse. He had not been to bed. Three years of loneliness coupled with that sense of security provided by sufficient money honestly come by had added a piquant flavour to New York's night life.

Before Steve had gone away he had seen only the outskirts of that life. To-day he could take part and fling foolish gold with the others.

And Steve wanted to show Mona this New York to which he had ascended. He had acquired an ease of manner, a sense of dress, an air. It stirred his vanity to be able to show Mona the new Steve, to walk on Broadway the Park Avenue way.

It was true, as he had told Mona, that before he had disappeared he had been involved with gangsters, innocently enough at first, had driven what the tabloids refer to as the "hold-up car," though as far as Steve knew he had been involved in no gun-play.

It seemed to be easy money. All Steve had to do was pick up his fare as prearranged, drive to a certain hide-out and collect his split. That the gang held out on him frequently made little difference. What he received was velvet and his risk was slight.

When he came to realize that the gang which hired him was not bound on pleasure parties, that the cash they handed him in furtive though generous amounts was offered usually after newspapers had printed accounts of this robbery or that along the jewel centres of the town Steve tried to pull out.

He was approached carefully and warned. Leave town and they'd get him. Or let the cops get him for a stretch at Sing Sing.

"You haven't anything on me, buddies," Steve insisted.

"Yeah? Tell that to the judge and see what it gets you!" They spoke glibly of accessory before and after the fact, of receiving stolen goods (this consisted of carrying the swag, unapprised, to the fences) of "raps" taken by innocent members of their organization.

Oh yes, they had plenty on him. So Steve perceived.

"Yellow," the gang called him. "Green," replied Steve. But privately he told himself, "Getting less green!"

It happened that Steve, back in the days before his association with "the gang" had often had as passenger in his cab a young man about town whose wavering footsteps could not always make the distance to his club at one o'clock in the morning.

Cruising about the supper club zone in that dull period just after the theatre crowds had been cared for, Steve formed the habit of picking up this passenger and dropping him safely at his club entrance.

This service was the beginning of a friendship. The night after the next jewel robbery had blazoned itself in morning and evening papers, Steve, driving idly past the club, had seen his old friend in an honest and upright condition waggling a finger into the traffic for a taxi. Steve drew to the curb and the young man got into the cab.

He was going to South America that evening, the passenger said. To make conversation Steve announced he would like to go too. "Come on!" The invitation was spontaneous and heartfelt. Here's the idea. Wind up any business you may have on hand and call for me at 11. You can ship as my man. The old boy got cold feet yesterday."

The trivial matter of passport could be arranged unblushingly. Baggage, my eye! Money? Here in the old jeans plenty.

It was hastily agreed. Steve "wound up his business" by changing the licence plate and ditching the taxi out Canarsie way, then lying low in a downtown movie house until sailing time.

In an open-all-evening shop selling men's wear he bought a hat designed to change his identity completely—a trick foisted on the world by none other than Colonel Lindbergh and worth adopting.

In a hired taxi he called for his benefactor at 11 o'clock. They boarded the Miranda in the North river, the white stars and blinking moon the only interested witnesses. New York slipped away at midnight from the ship's placid stern.

And that was that.

Now after three years Steve was back, a man of affairs. A partner, in fact, in a prosperous business in Brazil. He wanted to show the folks and he wanted to show Mona.

As he drove north Steve reflected that he wanted to take Mona to the swanky supper club he had found last evening.

She was a knockout but maybe she didn't have the things to wear. Not that he would mind—but she would. He had been away from civilization for three years but he knew women. It was no cinch these days for a girl to support herself, let alone her family. That good for nothing brother of Mona's—

Steve himself had bushels of money. Why not send her a gown just to wear that evening?

It did not occur to him that Mona's code might fail to include the acceptance of gowns sent to her by men friends, however well intended such a gift might be.

Steve closed his eyes and thought—as he had often thought—of Mona in a costume really befitting her beauty. That graceful figure, that hair, that creamy skin, the gray-green eyes, the wistfulness of Mona's smile, strangely at variance

THREE INJURED AT WEST POINT

MAN SAID TO HAVE ATTACKED WOMEN

FIVE A.M. DRAMA

The Western district was the scene of a domestic drama early this morning, when Fung Tso-yuen, 43, a merchant, is alleged to have attempted to take the life of his 28-year-old concubine, injured an elder woman who intervened, and then attempted to commit suicide by throwing himself from verandah.

All three victims in the affair were taken to Hospital, the concubine being in a critical state from a fractured skull.

Shortly after 5 o'clock the inmates on the first floor of 218, Des Voeux Road West were aroused by screams from a cubicle, and Fung Hoi, aged 50, hurried to render assistance. As she entered, she was struck with a marble clock. The man then, it is alleged, threw himself from the verandah into the street.

Police officers believe the man ran amok. He was picked up suffering from internal injuries, including, it is thought, a fractured pelvis.

The condition of the elder woman, believed to be his mother, is not reported as serious.

The Police belief that the man was not in full possession of his reason seems to be supported by the fact that on his person were found banknotes amounting to $500 which were all torn up.

with its setting—Steve laughed aloud as an idea occurred to him. Go to Pilgrim's and make old Pilgrim dress Mona up!

"They don't have anything too good for her, at that," Steve told himself.

Two hours' consultation with Henri at Pilgrim's did much to deplete Steve's ideas as well as his bank roll.

He slipped five dollars to the model displaying the gown because her colouring approached Mona's and because she had shown untiring patience. The messenger boy got another five to insure prompt delivery.

Then Steve dropped into a florist's, left an order and took his way to his mother's for a nap.

On the way up he recalled the proposed visit to the hospital. That necessitated other purchases and when a dressing gown, a Maybe Mona wouldn't like his buying all these things. That idea suddenly occurred to Steve. He dashed for a telephone and only by a series of threats did he get the magnificent Henri on the wire.

"Say," Steve said wildly, "slip a note in that box, will you? Something to the effect that I'm only lending the stuff. She might not take it otherwise see? Fix it up, you know how. And sign it 'Steve'."

"Ze box for Mees Moran? She has gone already," Henri waved an apologetic hand unseen over the phone.

"You are a liar," Steve told him cheerfully. "If it has, then get it back. I want that note enclosed."

"Yes Sir!" Marvelling at the innocence of the gentleman—an innocence already perceived and exploited when the bill was presented—Henri did as he was bid.

Henri's acquaintance with young ladies had not included those who required an apology for sending around ermine wraps and Patou gowns.

Well, well, perhaps the innocent young gentleman knew best.

MOSCOW TRIAL

MacDONALD CHANGES PLEA OF GUILTY

Moscow, Apr. 13.
William MacDonald who supplied the sensation on the opening day of the trial yesterday by pleading guilty to the charges brought by the Soviet against himself and five other British engineers, was again the cause of the excitement in the Trade Union Hall to-day.

MacDonald repudiated his plea, denied the charges and contradicted many of the admissions he had made on the previous day. In cool and calculated tones he denounced the statements he had made.

The court was only half-full to-day in view of the full working day. Many of the audience carried copies of the Izvestia Pravda, containing two pages of yesterday's proceedings.

The astonishing development occurred shortly after the re-opening of the trial at 10 a.m. when MacDonald, speaking English in a loud voice, repudiated his yesterday's plea of guilty and declared that he did not tell a man named Sokolov to commit sabotage.

The Prosecutor.—Why did you say so in the indictment?

MacDonald.—I considered it convenient in the circumstances, and no translation of my statement was made in my presence, I admitted that I was guilty yesterday.

The Prosecutor.—Do you say so to-day?

MacDonald.—No, I am actually not guilty.

MacDonald denied he had paid Sokolov for information but admitted he had paid Gusev and others 2,500 roubles for overtime partly from the firm's money and partly from his own pocket.

More Convenient.

M. Vyshinsky, the prosecutor, showed MacDonald that he had written in his own handwriting that he had received secret information from Sokolov and asked "Why did you write that if you denied it to-day?"

MacDonald replied that under the circumstances it was more convenient to write that testimony.

A most profound sensation was caused by MacDonald's testimony and the sudden turning of the tables. In the midst of it the microphones "broke down" and therefore, not all the public were able to understand what had happened.

The interpreter was frequently called to order to get the exact shades of meaning to MacDonald's testimony, which momentarily

CORRESPONDENCE.

Jews in Germany

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—We beg to inform you that we are in receipt of telegraphic information from the Ostasische Verein, Hamburg, the Koelnische Zeitung and other important Corporations in various parts of Germany, according to which all news about alleged atrocities in Germany are absolutely without foundation, that peace and security are guaranteed for all and that measures of the Authorities are carried out with the utmost discipline. All telegrams stress the point that the German National Revolution must be considered as a final defeat of Bolshevism in Germany and Europe.

confounded the prosecution. Standing upright, despite his lame left leg, MacDonald denounced in cool calculated tones, the statements contained both in the indictment and in his written statement.

Breeze With Prosecutor.

After 20 minutes adjournment, a breeze occurred between Thornton and Vyshinsky. Thornton denied the espionage allegations and said that he knew everything from working in the vicinity of military areas.

Vyshinsky.—So you heard aeroplane engines?

Thornton (sarcastically).—Yes, Aeroplanes do make a noise.

Asked why he had given untrue evidence, Thornton answered: "Because I lost my nerve. The serious charges have made heavy impressions on me."

Judge Ulrich.—When did your nerve return?

Thornton.—On the evening of April 4 when I was released.

A spectator whispered to Reuter: "Do you realise that this trial is costing the Soviet twenty-five millions, while the bribes mentioned would only buy a few typewriters."

Under cross-examination that the alleged evidence of each had been read to the other, MacDonald became exhausted, and was allowed to sit down. He declared he was under the impression that Monkhouse and Cushny were carrying out espionage.

Thornton asserted he was unaware that MacDonald was wrecking or spying "or I would have kicked him out," he said. MacDonald exclaimed "He knew of spying," and then limped out of the box.

The court then adjourned.

This morning's conflicting evidence is explained by the fact that MacDonald has been imprisoned at Lubianka and does not understand the whole situation.—Reuter.

MR. S. W. FLEGG.

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT DIES AT HOME.

We regret to report that a cable was received in Hongkong yesterday announcing the death, which occurred on Tuesday, at Ashford, Kent, of Mr. Sydney Matland Flegg, formerly of the Royal Naval Dockyard, Hongkong, after a long illness.

The late Mr. Flegg first joined the local dockyard in 1919 and was here until 1924, when he was transferred. He came out again in 1925, but on account of ill-health returned home in August last year. He was Head Clerk in the Electrical Department at the time of his departure.

Suffering from pernicious anaemia, deceased went into Kowloon Hospital in May last year, and was taken home in a hospital ship. When he arrived in England, he was for some time in the Naval Hospital at Chatham and was then invalided out of the dockyard service.

Mr. J. S. Flegg, of the Waterworks Department of Hongkong P.W.D., the only son of the deceased, received a letter from him by the last mail, in which he stated that he had been for a holiday. He had apparently had a relapse which culminated in his death.

Deceased will be best remembered in Hongkong as a keen bowler and had appeared on various occasions for the Civil Service Cricket Club and the Craigengower C. C. He was also a member of the Cathay Lodge of Free masons.

The late Mr. Flegg, who leaves a widow at home besides his son in Hongkong, was 57 years of age. His demise will be regretted by a large circle of friends out here and much sympathy will be felt for his bereaved relatives.

The funeral took place at Ashford at 3.30 p.m. (Greenwich time) yesterday.

Labour Appeal.

London, April 13.

The former Labour Ministers including Mr. Arthur Henderson, have appealed to the Government for three months extension of the present trade agreement with Russia, in order "to keep open the few remaining international channels profitable to industry and trade."

The appeal states that the extension would be indicative of a strong desire by Britain for friendly relations with Russia, and might conceivably be of greater service to the Britons who are under trial in Moscow, than the policy of threats of economic reprisals.—Reuter Morning Post Special.

CHILD WELFARE

Hongkong, which has in later years been concerning itself with child welfare, should find much of interest in the League of Nations' activities on this subject. The annual session of the Advisory Committee which is entrusted with this problem, is now in session, and amongst the subjects which figure on the agenda are reports on several enquiries which the Committee is undertaking. One of these is an enquiry into the legislation in various countries governing the admission of children to cinematograph performances. In view of the allegation that juvenile criminals are said to get much of their inspiration for their exploits from seeing certain types of films and yet there is a considerable divergence of opinion amongst experts in Great Britain as to the best means of protecting children from the effects of harmful or undesirable films, an enquiry of this kind into the experiences of other countries should throw some valuable light on the problem. Other problems that are being investigated by the committee are the welfare of blind children, and in particular their physical education, and problems affecting illegitimate children. Of a different order is consideration of a report on Youth Hostels. In view of the fact that this movement is growing, this report, too, should be of interest to those who feel that the Youth Hostel movement is a healthy, and desirable one. The protection of children of migrant workers is to be dealt with by the Committee at the request of the International Labour Office, and is a matter which has obvious international bearings. One of the most important matters which the Committee has to deal with at this session is the question of the complete re-organisation of the committee itself. This will be considered at a joint session with the Advisory Committee on the Traffic in Women and Children as the proposal has been put forward that a single committee should be set up to deal with all social questions coming under the purview of the League. This idea does not, however, find favour with members of the Child Welfare Committee as they believe that problems relating to such diverse matters as child welfare, the traffic in women and children and prison reform, call in each case for treatment by experts. They agree, however, that re-organisation in other directions is desirable.

European Tension

The world is still without a clue to the Hitler programme in foreign affairs; though French alarm remains as vociferous as ever and suspicion has entered into more than one English mind. The focus of interest for those wondering what sort of world is about to arise in Europe has now shifted to Rome, where Signor Mussolini is endeavouring to formulate a common Fascist policy, with a Four-Power Pact as its basis. Italy's intervention is well-timed. It may also be regarded as a safeguard. Mussolini, it is assumed, while prepared to support the demand for Peace Treaty revision, he will not countenance the employment of force. Franco-Italian relations are difficult, but Italy is no more anxious for war than any other country, though she fears that unless the big Powers do get together away from the turmoil and "intrigue" of vested interests, and small Power votes, the cause of world peace will be in jeopardy. It is felt that if the big Powers can reach a common understanding, settle details of their own armament problems, they might well afford to risk unpopularity with the smaller States. France is blamed in Italy for the present impasse, though Britain is also criticised on the score that her representatives give way too easily to France's "war panic" and have failed to accept the logical consequence of the recent assertion that Great Britain is not a continental Power. Meanwhile, a new factor has been introduced by the "interesting" visit of the Austrian Chancellor to Rome. This is reviving rumours of Austro-Hungarian plans for re-unification and the restoration of the Hapsburgs. The opportunity seems to be Signor Mussolini's to do historic good or harm in Europe.

THE INFLATIONISTS

What may turn out to be an important movement is at present going on among a number of Conservative members of Parliament. For some time many of them have been in favour of currency reform, with the idea of making this the spearhead of an expansionist policy. They have not hesitated to put this idea forward in the various debates that have been held on unemployment, and they have now decided to arrange a number of meetings which, it is hoped, will bring together all those interested in the subject. The group is said to be alarmed by the attitude of the Government, which is that the consideration of such a proposal cannot be undertaken until the World Economic Conference is held, and it will do everything possible to get the Cabinet to take the initiative instead of waiting for co-operation from abroad. The movement is by no means confined to members of Parliament, and has behind it the support of a number of influential people in the City. It is, incidentally, an interesting fact that the Ministry of Labour is giving detailed consideration to the scheme put forward by Sir Harold Bowden for using the dolo to subsidise employment. This proposal may quite possibly be raised when the Ministry meets representatives of the employers and the unions to discuss "the method by which the absorption of workers into industry might be examined in a practical way."

THE CROSS BEFORE CHRISTIANITY

By E. L. ALLEN

A contemporary novelist tells in one of his books of a tourist who is conducted round a quarter in Athens in which the spade of the excavator has been at work. The guide points out the ruins of an ancient church, and draws her attention to a crucifix which has been discovered there. It belongs to the fifth century. "How interesting!" is the comment, "now will that be B.C. or A.D.?" We are supposed to think of that question as an absurd one, but it may be that it is by no means as absurd as we might think. For the Cross—leaving aside, of course, what distinguished a crucifix from a simple cross—is by no means an exclusively Christian symbol. The fact is, it is one of the oldest objects of worship in the world. A cross composed of two lines cutting one another, one vertical and the other horizontal, sometimes standing by itself and sometimes enclosed within a circle, can be traced right back to the earliest civilisations. In some places, to be sure, we need not suppose that it is anything more than an ornament, but there are times when the presence alongside of it of human or animal figures shows quite clearly that it has some sort of religious significance.

MINOS OF CRETE

Most of us were brought up on the story of King Minos of Crete, who kept in his labyrinth a monster called the Minotaur, which consumed an annual meal of Athenian youths and maidens, till the king's daughter, Ariadne, fell in love with Theseus, giving him a clue with which to find his way about the labyrinth and a sword with which to kill the monster. We had always thought it a mere fairy-tale, till one day the palace of King Minos was dug up and his very labyrinth was brought to light! In that palace of a civilisation so lost that men refused to believe it had ever existed, crosses were found. The same emblem appears in early Persian pottery, and sometimes it has been found on designs, crowning the mast of a ship. Curiously enough, early Christianity seems to have been slow to make any use of the Cross for artistic purposes, but somewhere about the end of the second century it is to be found all over the Roman world.

When in 1519 Cortes landed on Yucatan, he unfurled a banner which bore the inscription: Friends, let us follow the Cross, and under this sign, if we have faith, we shall conquer. True to the manner of his times, he proposed to combine personal enrichment with patriotism and to make a trio of motives by adding to these the conversion of the heathen Mexicans. On landing in the neighbourhood of an Indian town, he made his way into the temple, a splendid building several stories high. Passing into the inner court, he started back in amazement—there in front of him stood a cross of stone and lime, "ten palms high," the chronicler says. His men came crowding round. "What!" they exclaimed, "in the remotest West, in a dark heathen temple, the Cross of our Saviour is waiting for us!" The same emblem was to be found almost everywhere after that, and the line of march upon Mexico

City was dotted with two sets of crosses, those which the invaders had set up behind them and those which had been receiving the worship of the people for centuries!

The cross in Yucatan was said to be associated with the rain-god. Those in other parts of the world are usually supposed to be symbols of life and fertility. There may be some to whom it comes as a bit of a shock to hear that what they had thought was through and through Christian had been counted sacred for centuries before the first Good Friday. Personally, I am not in the least disturbed by such discoveries, I rather rejoice in them. I like to think that Christ came into the world, not like a meteorite suddenly dropping on us out of the blue, but as the light towards which we had all along been groping, as an answer to what had been stirring in our minds since the very beginning of things.

The early Christians had the same problem when they found that the heathenism around them had not a few rites and beliefs that were remarkably like their own. Some said that this was a bit of the devil's trickery, a counterfeit to put people off from insisting on the real article! My sympathies are rather with the man who said it was a proof that the human heart is naturally Christian.

PHIPPS Protests AtHOMER AS BEST-SELLER

Outlook for the classics (Noon wire and double):

"I believe that Greek is completely played out." (The Earl of Middleton, in a speech at the Taunton School Old Boys' Association dinner.)

A sentiment to which I trust the Old Boys raised a unanimous beaker.

How Greek has evaded the vigilance of the N.S.P.C.C. is a mystery to me.

Delicately nurtured youths are whisked away from home, shot into some dim academic compound and given great lumps of Homer.

Even with a library of criba it takes them years to hack their way through the dank jungle of Athenian best-sellers.

Plato, Remosthenes, Aeschylus, Euripides, Aristophanes—as each is desperately digested, another rises in his place like a spectre, dripping with diabolical idioms and eccentricities of style.

Somehow the years roll on, the back of the lexicon (and its owner) are old and bent, and at long last the victims totter brokenly from the plaudits of a prize-giving, the tears rolling down their seamed and coarsened faces and falling quietly on to their brand new diplomas (or whatever fatuous tallman they have been given to remind them of their slavery).

And then?

Well, what about engineering, my boy? What about sales management? What about law?

What about them?

They're all Greek to him.

MOSCOW TRIAL

declared this morning that they consider his original plea of guilty holds good.

The main issue before the Court when the third day's proceedings started was whether the three thousand roubles given to the Soviet engineer, M. Dolgoff by Thornton was a loan or a bribe.

SELF-RIGHTEOUS WITNESS.

Dolgoff declared that he regarded the money as a corrupt payment and he handed it over to the authorities.

"I am very conscientious," he declared.

Despite Dolgoff's air of self-righteousness, his confident answers to all questions made a good impression.

Thornton admitted making the gift but asserted that the money was a loan for buying a room. He took no receipt "as Dolgoff said it was not necessary."

"Confessions" of sabotage executed on the incitement of the accused, MacDonald and Nordwall next held the stage.

BOLT INTO GENERATOR.

M. Kotlaravsky, the head of the turbine department at the Zuevka Electricity Works, said that acting on the request of MacDonald, he threw a bolt into a generator and wrecked the motor.

MacDonald paid him a thousand roubles for carrying out the act of sabotage. He also supplied MacDonald with blue prints of the Zuevka station.

Succeeding witnesses charged Nordwall with inciting them to sabotage and asserted that they faithfully performed the tasks he set them on a fairly extensive scale.

One of them declared that Nordwall paid him five thousand roubles.

NORDWALL PROTESTS.

Nordwall listened to the evidence in astonishment and then warmly told the Court: "All this evidence is absolutely untrue. I didn't bribe anybody. I did not plot against the Soviet."

A fur coat transaction between Nordwall and one of the accusing witnesses was then brought into the case. Nordwall explained that he sold the coat on behalf of an English engineer and received cash which he remitted to the owner.

The prosecutor, M. Vishinsky, made the most of certain discrepancies between Nordwall's present statement on this point and his pre-trial statement.

Prominent spectators in the Court to-day were M. Karl Radok, one of the Soviet Government executive heads and M. Michiel Borodin.

The rest of the morning session was occupied with the examination of Lebedev, another of the Russian accused, who is claimed by the prosecution to have participated with Lobanov in the wrecking organisation at Ivryes under Nordwall's instructions.

COURT REPLIES.

After a three-hour adjournment, Nordwall was again in the box and he created an excellent impression by his curt and decisive answers.

Nordwall referred to a mistake in erecting a turbine, in which connection Ollonik, one of the Russian employees of Metropolitan Vickers, in reply to a question, declared that Nordwall was to blame because he overlooked the mistake in the blue-prints.

Nordwall retorted that he did not notice any mistake nor did the expert commission. It was untrue that he was "pleased by accidents."

GARRULOUS WITNESS.

A garrulous Russian named Siebert was the next witness to give evidence.

He said that he had never worked with Metropolitan Vickers, but he was very friendly with Thornton, who told him that he need not examine the firm's machinery too closely because it was all good stuff.

Witness said he told Thornton about defects in the switches, which had caused a slowing up of work generally.

Thornton thanked him and handed over three hundred roubles.

A BONUS.

Thornton stood up and said he did not admit Siebert's story. He gave Siebert 250 roubles purely as a bonus because he did his work well.

Siebert declared that he started sabotaging because he respected Thornton very much and believed all that he said. He added that Gregory started counter-Soviet propaganda as soon as he came to Dneprostroy.

A. W. Gregory, who is construction engineer, speaking with a strong Welsh accent, caused a stir in Court by sharply declaring:

"This man Siebert insults me, injures my reputation and the Judge accepts his word without question. Is this justice?"

GOOD OR NOT?

Judge: Ulrich stopped him, saying: "Limit yourself to the facts. Your time is coming."

Gregory said he went to Dneprostroy to set up oil switches. He was very careful in his work in order to keep up Metropolitan Vickers' high reputation.

PREMIER IN SHANGHAIVISIT CAUSES
SPECULATION

Shanghai, April 14.
Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan, arrived unexpectedly in Shanghai from Nanking this morning. The Nanking leader's visit is giving rise to speculation regarding the political situation.

It is officially learned that immediately after his arrival, Mr. Wang called on Mr. T. V. Soong at the latter's residence. Mr. Wang, according to the official statement, has come to Shanghai specially to discuss financial affairs with Mr. Soong. He will return to Nanking to-night.

SOONG FOR WASHINGTON.

In an interview granted to Reuter, Mr. Wang Ching-wei stated that the Government still wanted to send Mr. T. V. Soong to Washington to participate in the international discussions on world economic problems. He had specially come to Shanghai to persuade Soong to accept the mission. Mr. Soong will decide whether to go or not this evening.

Mr. Sun Fo is not going, because of pressure of work in the Legislative Yuan.

Concerning the war situation in North China, Mr. Wang Ching-wei declared that Generals Sung Chih-yuan and Shang Cheng are assuming full charge of the war operations at the front. The recent withdrawal of the Chinese troops from the Great Wall was necessitated by military tactics, which cannot be regarded as a Chinese defeat. Reinforcements are being sent to the North according to the original plans, he said, and the Government's policy of resistance remains unchanged under all circumstances.

KIANGSI "REDS"

Regarding the Communist situation in Kiangsi, Mr. Wang Ching-wei said that before General Chiang Kai-shek's departure for the North, the campaign made considerable headway, but when General Chiang was called up to North China, the Communist forces again became active, but now with General Chiang again in Kiangsi, the situation is well in hand. The Communists have practically been surrounded by Government troops.

Mr. Wang further stated that Canton's expeditionary army will leave for North China very soon in accordance with schedule.

corner of the court-room, he said that he erected three oil switches each weighing forty-five tons in forty-eight days. He must leave it to the experts to say whether that was good or not.

When accused of propaganda among the Russian workers, he pointed out that he could not speak Russian. It took him all his time to teach them what to do. Besides he was not interested in politics.

M. Sukorutshkin, Deputy Chief Engineer of the Moscow Electrical Station, one of the Russians accused, said he recovered 2,500 roubles from Thornton for sabotage and was instructed to paralyse the electrical industry in the case of war by wrecking the key stations.

"Thornton and I made the plan," he said.

Thornton, in evidence, denied that such conversation with Sukorutshkin ever occurred or that he ever gave the man any money. The Court rose at 10 p.m.—Reuter.

CATEGORICAL STATEMENT.

London, Apr. 13.

In view of the nature of the charges made against the six British subjects at the Moscow trial, Sir John Simon made the following specific statement in the Commons:—

"None of these men has ever employed directly or indirectly in connection with any branch of our intelligence services. None of them has ever supplied any information to any such branch. None of them has ever paid or promised any reward for such information or has been supplied with any money to obtain it. None of them has ever made any report to or on behalf of our intelligence service. All above statements are equally true of the Metropolitan Vickers Company itself."

It follows that any suspicious enquiries or allegations made in any quarter to a contrary effect are in fact without any foundation whatsoever.

COMMUNICATION TROUBLE.

Telephone lines between Moscow and London are reported to be working too irregularly for satisfactory communication to be established and telegram are subject to heavy delays.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

CUSTOMS OFFICER IN COURT

Yesterday at the Kowloon Magistracy, there was a further development in the case against Mark William Hallums, master of the Chinese Maritime Customs launch, Kwan Lul, which had an armed encounter with a sailing junk in Junk Bay on April 1, resulting in the death of Ng Koo, a three-year-old girl.

On Wednesday afternoon, a special jury consisting of Messrs. C. C. Champkin (foreman), E. Cock and D. E. Clark, found that the circumstances of the case justified a verdict of manslaughter against the master of the Customs launch and the Coroner (Mr. H. R. Butters) committed Mr. Hallums to prison pending his trial.

Arising out of the verdict returned by the jury, Mr. Hallums again appeared at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon. Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, proffered a charge of manslaughter against Mr. Hallums who was represented by Mr. W. A. Mackinlay.

In proffering the charge, Mr. Fraser referred to the Coroner's Abolition Ordinance, No. 5 of 1888, under which a Magistrate's powers are equivalent to those which he has under a Magistrate's Ordinance. He stated that Mr. Hallums had been brought from the prison to the Court under a Judge's order, for the purpose of making his defence to the present charge and that he had no objection to a substantial bail of, say, $1,000.

Magistrate's Doubts.

Mr. Butters:—I think it would be most improper that I should be the Magistrate before whom the Lower Court procedure is taken against Mr. Hallums in view of the fact that I, as Coroner, have heard the evidence and have heard the verdict of a special jury.

Mr. Fraser: It would be convenient if the hearing could be held in Kowloon. I know of no objection to your Worship taking the proceedings.

Mr. Butters: As far as I can see, I am being asked to duplicate what I did on Wednesday afternoon. I would prefer the case to be taken by another Magistrate.

Mr. Fraser: Your Worship, there is only one Magistrate in Kowloon.

Mr. Butters: But, it doesn't need to be me. I have most decided objections to hearing this case.

Mr. Mackinlay: The Commissioner of the Chinese Maritime Customs will stand security for the bail. I see no reason for duplicating the enquiry and it will only cause Mr. Hallums unnecessary expense. While we are in your Worship's hands, we oppose this application for the enquiry to be re-heard.

Mr. Butters: I am being requested to take part in a duplicate of the first enquiry.

Mr. Mackinlay: With regard to the bail, the Commissioner of Chinese Maritime Customs, Mr. E. N. Ensor, is prepared to enter into a bond.

Mr. Butters: I am granting bail on the Coroner's enquiry and this charge.

Mr. Hallums was then admitted to bail of $1,000 and the case was formally remanded for a week.

"I'm not buying a price
..I'm buying a real car!"

"AND that's why I'm buying a Rockne. I don't just think Rockne is the best low-priced car. I know it is. I've compared it. I've driven it. Rockne's a Studebaker product, you know. And you find the Studebaker influence all through it. It's simply overflowing with high-priced car specifications. I don't suppose I've had any finer upholstery even in the costly cars I've owned. I know I've never been in a more comfortable, easier riding car. And my wife feels the same as I do about it!"

"How does Studebaker do it? That's their problem not yours or mine. I only know that when Studebaker does anything they do it right. And this Rockne I've bought is the proof!"

ROCKNE HAS "EVERYTHING"
Six-cylinder, 70-horsepower engine floated in live rubber... free wheeling, synchronized shift, silent second... automatic switch-key starting... double-drop, rigid "X" frame... one piece all steel bodies of full-aerodynamic design... contoured upholstery with special coil springs... lower over-all height... closed bodies wired for radio and numerous other fine car features.

ARMS POSSESSION.

CHINESE HEIRLOOMS WITH OUT LICENCE

The charge against Kwok Lun, who was found in possession of a number of old swords and daggers, was dismissed yesterday afternoon by Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy.

Mr. O. E. C. Marton appeared for the defence, while Sub-Inspector W. A. Smith prosecuted. Inspector Smith, in outlining the case, said that on the evening of March 26, notification was received that a Chinese residing in Kowloon City was in possession of arms and literature. The police in searching the house found several old daggers and a cutlass in a box, the keys having been produced willingly by the defendant.

Sergeant R. G. Butcher in evidence stated that on March 26 he searched the house. Under defendant's bed a box was discovered containing one old cutlass. Continuing the search in the cock-loft, four small daggers were found wrapped in paper. In another cubicle, three old-fashioned daggers were also found.

Chun Sui-ping, a Chinese Police Sergeant, gave similar evidence.

Mr. Marton asked that the defendant be discharged on the grounds that there was no evidence that he had not got a licence. The four large daggers had descended to defendant from his great-grandfather, who died 51 years ago, and defendant had kept them as heirlooms with no intention of using them. He had not thought it necessary to procure a licence for them.

Mr. Butters, however, thought defendant technically guilty, and ordered the confiscation of the cutlass and four small daggers. The larger old-fashioned daggers could be kept by defendant in the event of his applying for a licence.

Regarding the literature, defendant said in evidence that the book had belonged to his cousin, who died in 1928. Defendant could not read it and had not realised that it was a Triad Society book.

This second charge was dismissed by the Magistrate.

Taiyo Maru, Hikawa Maru, Hiye Maru, Helan Maru and Bokuyo Maru. 2nd class applies to the Asama Maru, Tatsuta Maru and Chichibu Maru; Tourist class "A" to Heiyo Maru; Tourist class "B" to Taiyo Maru and Rakuyo Maru; Tourist class "C" to Hikawa Maru, Hiye Maru and Helan Maru.

The above round-trip fares apply to the vessels sailing during June and July, and tickets are available up to September 30, by which date passengers must start on the return voyage. Sailings for those months are as follows:

For Honolulu, San Francisco and Los Angeles, Chichibu Maru June 7, Rakuyo Maru June 8, Tatsuta Maru June 21, Asama Maru July 5, Taiyo Maru July 17, Heiyo Maru July 29.

For Vancouver and Seattle starting from Kobe, Hiye Maru June 5, Helan Maru June 24, Hikawa Maru July 17, Hiye Maru July 31.

Further particulars are obtainable at the N.Y.K. Office, Hongkong.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Although George O'Brien, and Maureen O'Sullivan, Ireland's foremost contributions to the screen, worked at the same studio for several years, they never appeared together until they were cast for the leading roles in "Robbers' Roost," now showing at the King's Theatre. Maude Eburne, Reginald Owen, William Pawley and Walter McGrail head the supporting cast of this Fox Film offering, which deals with the efforts of a rascally ranch foreman to "hi-jack" his employer's entire herd. O'Brien enacts the part of an unwilling member of the foreman's band, and Miss O'Sullivan that of the ranch owner's sister. Louis King directed and Dudley Nichols wrote the screen play from the original novel by Zane Grey.

"Me and My Gal"
Based in an original story by Barry Connors and Philip Klein, directed by Raoul Walsh and with the featured roles played by Joan Bennett, the new Fox Comedy-romance comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday. In the King's "Me and My Gal," Joan Bennett portrays the role of a sophisticated cashier in a downtown New York restaurant, while Tracy appears as a smart young detective who falls in love with her. Their romance leads to exciting paths, particularly for Tracy, who, as the result of his romance, runs to earth a gang of desperate bank robbers. Supporting Miss Bennett and Tracy in a cast of notable that includes Marion Burns, formerly of the New York Stage, who made her picture debut in "The Golden West," J. Farrell MacDonald, Henry B. Walthall, George Walsh, Neil Hamilton and George Chandler.

"The Mummy"
You'll see the strangest, most thrilling breath-taking night you have ever imagined in Universal's sensational film, "The Mummy," showing at the Central Theatre on Saturday. A mummy—3700 years old—comes to life before your eyes to start the strangest drama of reincarnation and love that has ever been shown on the screen. Through the ages, the experience of your life, Universal producer of the world's most electric dramas—"Frankenstein," "Dracula," "Phantom of the Opera" and others, brings to this theatre its supreme achievement in the mystic and occult—"The Mummy" starring Karlloff in a role that shatters all records for sheer thrill and uncanny power! You'll never forget this strange man out of the ancient past who loosed his mystic spells on the modern world, who claimed his love after centuries, who threatened to sacrifice the happiness of two young lovers, Karlloff in the greatest picture of his sensational career, with the alluring Zita Johann, handsome David Manners, Arthur Byron, Edward Van Sloan, Bramwell Fletcher, Noble Johnson, and a large cast. Dazzling, spectacular sets of ancient civilization, colour excitement, drama, romance—"The Mummy" will live with you forever.

Never before has Greta achieved so emotional and convincing a performance as in "As You Desire Me," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film which is at the Queen's Theatre. The reason for this is perhaps two-fold; the obvious appreciation of the glamorous star for her unusual role, and the solid material provided by playwright Luigi Pirandello in his brilliant stage play from which the screen feature was deftly adapted.

Credit for the treatment of the plot is given to George Fitzmaurice, who has given a situation that might tend toward triteness in the capable hands of the Italian nobleman is a difficult premise. But Miss Garbo and Fitzmaurice made it not only plausible but intensely human and real. Melvyn Douglas plays opposite Miss Garbo as the brooding nobleman who accepts her as his wife, even after he knows of her impersonation. Douglas' performance is thorough and convincing. Erich Von Stroheim heads the supporting cast as the principal menace and others featured include Owen Moore, Hedda Hopper, Rafala Otto, Harcourt Gable, Albert Conti, William Riechard and Roland Varno.

"Robbers' Roost."
What is said to be George O'Brien's outstanding screen achievement, will be seen to-day at the King's Theatre with the opening of his newest Fox Film vehicle, "Robbers' Roost." It has a supporting cast headed by Maureen O'Sullivan and one of Zane Grey's most exciting tales as a basis for its plot.

O'Brien is portrayed as a fugitive who joins a group of cattle rustlers headed by the foreman of a large ranch. The ranch owner, a wealthy Britisher, knows nothing about the business, and the foreman plans to round up the entire herd, drive it over the border into Mexico and sell it. Before his employer wakes and tell the story of the owner's sister from London, however, changes O'Brien's view and brings about the climax of the picture.

Besides Miss O'Sullivan, the cast includes Maude Eburne, who has the role of her aunt; Reginald Owen as the ranch owner; William Pawley as the scheming foreman; Walter McGrail, Robert Greig, Doris Lloyd and Frank Rice. Louis King, rated as one of the leading "outdoor" directors in Hollywood, directed the picture. The Zane Grey story was adapted by Dudley Nichols.

"Me and My Gal."
Though before she was nine years old, Joan Bennett wrote and directed a play in which she and her sisters, Constance and Barbara, played the characters, she had no ambition to follow in the footsteps of her distinguished father, Richard Bennett, and her mother, Adrienne Morrison, who week a career on the stage. She was determined to become a business woman and open an interior decorating shop. In fact, she attempted to induce her mother to leave the stage and take a partnership.

The enterprise never materialized and heredity got the chance to assert itself. Miss Bennett went on the stage. Her forbears were all famous stage people, her grandmother, Rose Wood, and her grandfather, Lewis Morrison, being stage favourites for many years. Ability was in her blood.

Miss Bennett is one of the youngest leading women in pictures, yet, she looks forward to the future when she hopes to become a director and, at the same time, design the art for her sets. She has her own ideas regarding picture production; radical, perhaps, and interesting. She sees no reason why authors, artists and producers should not make successful pictures for the screen.

In "Me and My Gal," Miss Bennett shares leading honours with Spencer Tracy. It will be recalled that they appeared together in "She Wanted a Millionaire," one of the most successful pictures of 1931.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

The increased grand slam premium which went into effect with the new laws has had a profound effect on the bidding of grand slams, not only from a mathematical, but also from a psychological standpoint.

Formerly players were extremely cautious about grand slam bids, and if that declaration was finally reached the hand was usually so obvious that no play was necessary.

With the increased premium players are searching their hands more carefully for grand slam possibilities, and there is a tendency to bid doubtful slams in the hope that they can be made by careful play or favorable distribution.

A grand slam is a good gamble if it has an even chance of success, and if the declarer has confidence in his ability to get every possible trick out of the cards, he may bid grand slam rather freely.

The Bidding

To-day's hand was played in a club which is noted for its high stakes. Both sides were vulnerable and South opened the bidding with one club.

West passed and North responded with one heart—a one over one force. South's next bid was three hearts, which was a game-demand force and guaranteed at least four hearts in the hand plus some extra high card strength beyond that required for the original bid.

North bid four clubs and South's next bid was four trump—a very illuminating bid which showed clearly that South did not wish to sign off, which he could easily have done by bidding four hearts or five clubs.

For slam bidding purposes it is assumed that an original bid shows control of two suits, and South would not have dared to invite a slam unless he held control of a third; therefore North could now count his partner for four hearts headed by the ace, four or five clubs headed by the ace and king, and the ace of spades.

This assured that there would be no losing tricks in spades, hearts or clubs, and the only risk in bidding a grand slam would be the possibility of losing a diamond trick. North gambled that South's diamonds would either be strong enough or short enough to avoid that loss and bid seven hearts.

It is noteworthy that he bid the grand slam in his four-card suit rather than his five-card suit, always remembering the possibility of using his fifth club for a discard.

The Play

East quite properly opened the king of spades, which declarer won in dummy with the ace and

TELEPRINTER SERVICES

GOVERNMENT PLANS REGULATIONS

The draft of an Ordinance to make provision for licensing, permitting, regulating and controlling the special services known as teleprinting, teletyping and tele-photography is published in the Gazette.

These are modern developments of telegraphy of which use is being made, or contemplated by different organisations in the Colony and it seems desirable to place such use under proper control, to regulate competition in what is now an open field and to prevent induction or other interference with Government or other services.

The Hong Kong Telephone Company Ltd. has under the Telephone Ordinances, 1925 and 1930, the sole right, subject to those Ordinances, to operate public telephonic communication within the Colony, including trunk line telephonic communication therein for communicating with places outside the Colony, and although the three services mentioned are capable of being operated over telephone lines they are essentially telegraphic services which are equally capable of being operated over telegraph lines and possibly also by wireless.

PREMIER'S MISSION

AIMS IN VISIT TO WASHINGTON

WAR DEBTS AND ECONOMICS

London, Apr. 13.
The Prime Minister told the House of Commons to-night that when in the United States
he will discuss, with President Roosevelt, war debts, wholesale price levels and disarmament.

Both Governments were agreed that there should be a preliminary and candid examination of the war debt situation of which would be one of the greatest blessings to the present generation.

An instalment of the debt payments became due on June 15th and before then there would have to be a personal and candid examination for it was not going to be merely a matter of experts.

No provisional agreement,
however, subject to the acceptance of the Cabinet, would be entered into as a result of his Washington visit.

There would merely be exchanges of views.

in political affairs.—Reuter.

FRENCH BUDGET PASSED AFTER ALL NIGHT SITTING

Paris, Apr. 14.
After an all night sitting, the Chamber passed the French budget at 6.15 a.m. to-day by 514 votes to 67.
The budget figures show a deficit of 4,177,000,000 francs.—
Reuter.

Mr. MacDonald added that he would take the opportunity of the visit to speak to Mr. Roosevelt as President of the International Economic Conference.

No great success could result from that conference unless part of the obstructions raised in the way of international trade were removed. He wanted to get cooperation of the most cordial character and if he could do that he thought his mission would be successful.—British Wireless.
